Shakespeare's Hundred Best One-Liners is not a tome. It was designed for R&R (rest and recreation) not stodgy or arcane research.

Also included on every other page are 50 of the Bard's most famous words and phrases that have survived 400 years to become household words. Included on this amazing list are..."Household Words", "Green-Eyed Monster", "Into Thin Air", "Dead As a Doornail", "Salad Days" and on and delightfully on.

This carefully chosen collection is one that you will want to make your own as well as share with friends, relatives and maybe even a few enemies. After even a quick reading, you will be able to flatten all those who offend you with such Shakespearian zingers as "I do desire we may be better strangers".
