LOVE OF LIFE and other stories by JACK LONDON

Where there's life, there's hope." Above is the tag line for our film; Love of Life. Our story is adapted from a famous short story by Jack London. The secret to the appeal of this story is in the emotional impact it produces, behind which is the author's skill, the superb literary talent of Jack London. Without any prologue and exposition our movie brings the audience right into the middle of the events. Starting from the very first scene and further into the story, we rely on visual imagery. This draws a clearer picture of events as well as to intensify what is happening to the main character. We see and feel the cold and hear the dull voice of the man in the story. We use a ghostly vision to tell us the man's thoughts and consciousness. This allows us to make trips in time, both into the past and future. As soon as he returns to the present, we again give more visual imagery. This is how the sense of hunger, experienced by the protagonist, is brought to the awareness of the audience. The visual images of the hero's suffering cause and intensify our compassion for him: Finally, one thought took total control of his consciousness: to eat! He sleeps under the open sky but is restless, hungry. More and more frequently, the wolves' howling is heard in the deserted distance. Three wolves cautiously cross his path. The man has already thrown away most of his things. He next empties half of the heavy bag filled with gold; the same gold for which he came to these distant wild lands. In the evening, he empties the rest of the bag. From time to time, he begins losing consciousness. Some time passes, and he does not reason anymore

FALLING IN LOVE with other essays on more exact branches of science by GRANT ALLEN

Some people complain that science is dry. That is, of course, a matter of taste. For my own part, I like my science and my champagne as dry as I can get them. But the public thinks otherwise. So I have ventured to sweeten accompanying samples as far as possible to suit the demand, and trust they will meet with the approbation of consumers.

Of the specimens here selected for exhibition, my title piece originally appeared in the Fortnightly Review: 'Honey Dew' and 'The First Potter' were contributions to Longman's Magazine: and all the rest found friendly shelter between the familiar yellow covers of the good old Cornhill. My thanks are due to the proprietors and editors of those various periodicals for kind permission to reproduce them here.
